Kerrin Cocks of 30 Degrees South Publishing speaks during proceedings. More than 300 guests attended from all over the globe.

The Band of the Scots Guards marches on to Beat Retreat

The Chaplain to the Household Division, the Rev PA Irwin, blesses the RLI. Steve Crump, standing next to Colonel Aust, thinks “This wasn’t in the script!”

After playing Sarie Marais (with sheet music borrowed from the Royal Marines!), the band march off in salute to the RLI playing 'Heilan Laddie'. Steve Crump of 30 Degrees South UK commented; "This event was an enormous privilege to organise. I knew it was going to be good – but not this good"
